7 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

8 Plaintiff(s),

9 v.

10 DANIEL PARLIN, et al.,

11 Defendant(s).

Case No. 2:14-CR-299 JCM (CWH)

ORDER

13 Presently before the court is defendant Daniel Parlin's motion for judicial 14 recommendation. (ECF No. 228). The United States ("government") has not filed a response,
15 and the time for doing so has passed.

16 I. Background

17 On May 16, 2016, the court sentenced Parlin to 87 months' custody to be followed by 18 three years of supervised released for conspiracy to distribute a controlled substance in violation
19 of 21 U.S.C. § 841(a)(1), (b)(1), and (C), and for conspiracy to commit money laundering in 20 violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1956(a)(1)(A)(i), (B)(i), and (B)(ii). (ECF Nos. 165, 171).

21 On September 16, 2019, Parlin filed the instant motion requesting that the court
22 recommend to the Bureau of Prisons ("BOP") that he be considered for placement at a residential
23 reentry center and for home confinement as soon as he is eligible, pursuant to 18 U.S.C.
24 §§ 3621(b)(4) and 3624(c)(1). (ECF No. 228).

25 II. Legal Standard

26 A federal defendant who has been convicted and sentenced to a term of imprisonment is 27 committed to the custody of the BOP. 18 U.S.C. § 3621(a). The BOP "shall designate the place
28 of the prisoner's imprisonment." 18 U.S.C. § 3621(b); see United States v. Ceballos, 671 F.3d

1 852, 855 (9th Cir. 2011) (recognizing that the BOP “has the statutory authority to choose the
2 locations where prisoners serve their sentence”).

3 Pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §§ 3621(b) and 3624(c), the BOP has discretion to place an inmate
4 in a residential reentry center (“RRC”) and/or home confinement. See Sacora v. Thomas, 628
5 F.3d 1059, 1061–62 (9th Cir. 2010) (recognizing that these two “statutory provisions govern the
6 BOP’s authority to place inmates in its custody in RRCs”). Section 3621(b) authorizes the BOP
7 to “designate the place of the prisoner’s imprisonment” upon consideration of, in pertinent part:

8 (4) any statement by the court that imposed the sentence—

9 (A) concerning the purposes for which the sentence to imprisonment was 10 determined to be warranted; or

11 (B) recommending a type of penal or correctional facility as appropriate;

12 18 U.S.C. §§ 3621(b)(4)(A)–(B).

13 Section 3624(c)(1), as amended by the Second Chance Act (“SCA”), states that the BOP
14 “shall, to the extent practicable, ensure that a prisoner serving a term of imprisonment spends a
15 portion of the final months of that term ... under conditions that will afford that prisoner a 16 reasonable opportunity to adjust to and prepare for the reentry of that prisoner into the 17 community.” 18 U.S.C. § 3624(c)(1). An appropriate placement may include an RRC or home
18 confinement. 18 U.S.C. § 3624(c)(1)–(2). The SCA also requires the BOP to issue regulations
19 designed to ensure that RRC placements are (1) “conducted in a manner consistent with section 20 3621(b),” (2) “determined on an individual basis,” and (3) “of sufficient duration to provide the 21 greatest likelihood of successful reintegration into the community.” 18 U.S.C. § 3624(c)(6).

22 III. Discussion

23 Parlin contends that the requested judicial recommendation is warranted for a number of 24 reasons. (ECF No. 228). Parlin first argues that the court has the authority to make such a
25 recommendation pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §§ 3621(b)(4) and 3624(c). Id. Parlin then notes that his 26 counsel could have made this request at the time of sentencing but neglected to do so. Id.
27 Additionally, Parlin submits that during his approximately three years of incarceration, he has 28 become an orderly for the administration building at his facility, has completed over fifty adult

1 continuing education courses, has maintained a relationship with his five-year-old son, and has
2 completed several substance treatment programs. Id.

3 In Ceballos, the Ninth Circuit held that a litigant cannot appeal a non-binding judicial 4 recommendation because it is not part of the sentence. 671 F.3d at 856. The Ninth Circuit also 5 suggested, in dicta, that “this holding does not deprive district courts of the authority to make (or 6 not make) non-binding recommendations to the Bureau of Prisons at any time—including but not 7 limited to—during the sentencing colloquy.” Id., n.2. Accordingly, the court finds that it has the 8 discretion to issue, or not issue, a post-judgment recommendation, and that such a
9 recommendation does not violate the limitations set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3582 and Federal Rules
10 of Criminal Procedure 35 and 36.

11 In light of Parlin’s considerable efforts toward self-improvement while incarcerated and 12 the lack of any government response to the contrary, the court finds that reentry placement would 13 advance the goals of the SCA. Therefore, the court will grant Parlin’s motion for judicial 14 recommendation and issue a non-binding recommendation that he be considered for placement at 15 a residential reentry center and for home confinement as soon as he is eligible.

16 IV. Conclusion

17 Accordingly,

18 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, and DECREED that Parlin’s motion for 19 judicial recommendation (ECF No. 228) be, and the same hereby is, GRANTED.

20 IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that Parlin be considered for placement at a 21 residential reentry center and for home confinement as soon as he is eligible.

22 DATED October 17, 2019.
